TO ALL MEDIA

26 MARCH 2026

The Minister of Higher Education and Training, Buti Manamela, will deliver a keynote address at the launch of the Fourth Industrial Revolution (4IR) Programme and Driving Simulator Centres at South West Gauteng TVET College on Friday, 27 March 2026.

The milestone event marks a significant step in advancing innovative, technology-driven education and training aligned with the demands of the modern economy. The launch will bring together key stakeholders, including government representatives, industry partners, education authorities, and community members.

The 4IR Programme aims to modernise teaching and learning by integrating digital and emerging technologies into the curriculum, while the Driving Simulator Centres introduce cutting-edge practical training tools to enhance road safety and awareness and learner preparedness.

The event will also serve as a platform to foster collaboration between government, Sector Education and Training Authorities (SETAs), and industry stakeholders, while inspiring students and communities to embrace opportunities presented by the Fourth Industrial Revolution.
