The Quality Council for Trades and Occupations (QCTO) will, as part of its effort to promote access to Post-School Education and Training (PSET) for the future world of work, host the launch of the Occupational Qualifications Sub-Framework (OQSF).

The launch of the Occupational Qualifications Sub-Framework (OQSF) marks the next big step in the education and training landscape.

Referred to as the game-changer for the industry, the OQSF brings the country closer to a system that satisfies the demands of industries while also guaranteeing that students have access to qualifications that prepare them for the workforce and allow them to map a learning pathway across the National Qualifications Framework (NQF).

The Deputy Minister will be joined by the QCTO CEO, Mr. Vijayen Naidoo, Education and Training Sector strategic partners and other leaders within the skills development sector.
